Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Catalogue of the Engravings Issued by the Society of Iconophiles of the City of New York, 1894-1908 Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, writing in 1876, tells us that clubs had long been one of the features of New York life, but prior to 1825 they were small and attained no special publicity, nor did they multiply rapidly for another decade. Notwithstanding, - she continues, - New York is now the second city in the world (London standing first), in the number and membership of its clubs, there being in operation within the city limits upwards of one hundred, with a membership in the aggregate of not less than fifty thousand. This enumeration must have included, we judge, every sort and kind of an organization in the city of a social, civic, commercial, scientific or political character, most of which were of an ephemeral nature, and long since ceased to exist. How short-lived the great majority of them were, is shown by the fact that only three strictly social clubs are now in existence that were established before the civil war; namely, the Union Club, founded in 1836, the Century Association in 1847, and the Harmonic Club, organized in 1852. The Union League Club - organized as a purely patriotic and political association, but now largely social in character - which is next in longevity to the afore-mentioned was founded in 1863; the University Club in 1865.
